Explanatory Note

(Provisional)

This compilation follows, twenty-five years afterward, the "List of . . . Serial Publications" issued by the Boston Public Library in 1897. Not infrequently serials were listed, in the earlier record, that are herein neither listed nor otherwise represented. The present grouping, therefore, in substance continues, and does not entirely supersede, the list of 1897.

The present work when completed will contain, it is planned, not merely the alphabetical list, but also a subject-index, as in 1897.

The alphabetical list consists of (1) Brief records of serial publications, followed by abbreviations denoting, specifically, libraries receiving serials described; and (2) Names (sometimes obsolete) of serials and organizations, and names of places, etc., — referring those interested from such names to other portions of the list, for further information. The foregoing records of serial publications, accrediting them to at least one library, constitute Main Entries, and are numbered; the names, merely referring to other portions of the list, are References.

A serial publication is recorded herein either under its title; or under its author, that is, under the name of an organization or country (or other unit of government) issuing the publication; or under the place (city or other locality) in which the establishment, institution, or other organization, governmental or otherwise, issuing the publication, is situated; or, if a newspaper, under the place of publication. It is hoped that the following general statements, with examples, will assist the inquirer, in cases of any difficulty, to determine in which category a publication desired is most likely to be found.

TITLE. Under the title are usually recorder such serial publications as are periodicals in the commonly accepted use of the term, and are assumed to be issued independently (not by an organization or government as author).
Example:

4 A B C Pathfinder Railway Guide. [1849.] Boston. m.

Also, under their titles, if distinctive, are recorded many serial publications, even though they may be issued by organizations deemed to be their authors. Example:

- 615 American Journal of Roentgenology. [1906. (American Quarterly of Roentgenology.)] (American Roentgen Ray Society.) New York. m.

AUTHOR. Under the organization as author are usually recorded serials having non-distinctive or routine titles (Proceedings, Sitzungsberichte, and the like), and issued by learned societies, or other similar organizations. Example:

- 10 Aachener Geschichtsverein, Aachen. — Zeitschrift. [1879.]

Also under the author (unless under their distinctive titles) are usually recorded serials of such universities or other similar institutions as are within the jurisdiction either of the United States, or of the British Empire. Example:

- 1486 Augustana College and Theological Seminary, Rock Island, Ill. [1860.] — Augustana Bulletin.

AUTHOR OR PLACE. Serials of countries, and of other units of government, are usually recorded either (1) under the country or other unit, as author, or (2) under the place (city or other locality) in which the governmental establishment issuing the serial is situated. Examples:

- 1516a Austria. STATISTISCHE ZENTRAALKOMMISSION, Vienna. — Statistische Monatsschrift. [1875.] Brünn.

- 1769 Berlin. PREUSSISCHES METEOROLOGISCHES INSTITUT [with observatory at Potsdam]. — Abhandlungen. [1882.]

PLACE. (City or other locality.)

(1) A serial of an observatory that is independent of a university is usually recorded under the place in which the observatory is situated. Example:

- 7 Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle), Prussia. METEOROLOGISCHES OBSERVATORIUM. [1900.] — Ergebnisse der Beobachtungen. Karlsruhe. y.

(2) So, likewise, in the case of a serial of a chamber of commerce, or of a similar essentially local organization. Example:

- 1484 Augsburg, Bavaria. HANDELSKAMMER. — Jahresbericht.

(3) So, likewise, in the case of a serial of a foreign (except a British) university or other similar institution. Example:

- 8 Aachen. TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE. [1870.] Eisenhüttenmännisches Institut. — Mitteilungen. Halle.

PLACE OF PUBLICATION. A newspaper is recorded under its place of publication. Example:

- 259 Akron, Ohio. [Newspapers.] — Akron Beacon Journal. d.

It may be well to note here a few details often included in the record of a serial publication. Consider, for instance, a serial recorded under its title, but affiliated with a learned society. After the title is placed, when practicable, the year of the serial's foundation. A variant title, inserted in parentheses just after this date, is the title that was then current. The name of the affiliated society follows, with, in many cases, its established residence. Finally comes the place of publication; omitted when presumed to have been already recorded as the society's residence. The English form of the name of a place is used in preference to the vernacular. Sometimes the frequency of publication is also noted. See "Additional Abbreviations," following the table of Libraries Represented.

LIBRARIES REPRESENTED. This table is arranged in the order of the abbreviations, and is self-explanatory. Superior numbers attached to many of them, throughout the work, indicate the extent of the file of a serial in the libraries specified. Thus B<sup>1</sup> denotes that, of the given serial, the collection of the Boston Public Library is an excellent, perhaps a perfect, file; B<sup>2</sup>: File considerable in extent; B<sup>3</sup>: File of recent years only; B<sup>4</sup>: File fragmentary; B<sup>5</sup>: Serial received currently, but not preserved. Though these numbers are undoubtedly helpful, the inquirer is reminded that a B<sup>2</sup> may have become, through the acquisition of a back file, a B<sup>1</sup>; that a B<sup>3</sup> may have grown, through accretion, to a B<sup>2</sup>; and that, in general, these numbers (especially 2, 3, and 4) are to be deemed suggestive rather than explicit.

REFERENCES, which include titles (current or obsolete) of serials, names of organizations and of places of residence of organizations, and other data intended to assist the interested searcher by guiding him to other portions of the list for further information, are frequently used herein. But it should be observed that newspapers are recorded only under the place of publication, with no reference from the title; and that the serial publications of chambers of commerce and similar local organizations are usually recorded under the places in which these organizations are established, with few, if any, references from the titles of the serials. Nor will references often be found from the titles of government publications.

The Compiler and Editor is glad to have the privilege of acknowledging gratefully in this note assistance received not only from prior compilations, but also from many persons and organizations. It would seem appropriate, while recording his gratitude to all, to specify by name the outstanding contributory factors to the enterprise.

The foremost coadjutor in this work is of course the Boston Public Library. The Compiler desires heartily to thank the Library, not only for liberal working facilities during many years, but also for providing an adequate typographical setting (of vital importance in elucidating material of this character) worthily upholding the Library's traditional high standards as to type resources, accuracy, and technical skill, — and for its provision as to copies of the compilation for subscribers and others.

Several years ago a Committee of Librarians and other Scholars was formed, immediately related to this enterprise. The personnel of this coöperating committee is as follows: William C. Lane, Chairman, Harvard College Library; Charles F. D. Belden, Boston Public Library; Robert P. Bigelow, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Charles K. Bolton, Boston Athenaeum; Walter Bradford Cannon, Harvard Medical School; Samuel A. Chevalier, Boston Public Library; Reginald A. Daly, University Museum (Harv. Univ.); John W. Farlow, Boston Medical Library; Frederick W. Faxon, F. W. Faxon Company; George Winthrop Lee, Stone & Webster, Inc.; Alfred Rehder, Arnold Arboretum (Harv. Univ.); Harry W. Tyler, American Academy of Arts and Sciences. The Compiler desires heartily to thank the Coöperating Committee, and each member of it, for assistance rendered, through encouragement given, meetings attended, and good offices in general.

He also heartily thanks the Harvard College Library; the Boston Medical Library; the New York Public Library; the John Crerar Library; the Library of Congress; Stone & Webster, Inc.; the F. W. Faxon Company; the Library of the College of Liberal Arts of Boston University; and, indeed, every subscriber, and every library whose resources have been utilized herein.

The writer has long been interested in this undertaking; and thus the pleasure and stimulus of meeting many individuals, appreciative of his efforts, have been his. As he looks across the years, however, a few men stand out from the others. May they here be recorded: R. P. Bigelow; F. H. Chase; Alfred Ela; G. W. Lee; W. C. Lane. And of all the largess of coöperation, from individuals, received throughout the decade of these labors, that unstinted measure given so freely by the scholar last named is felt by the writer to have been facile princeps.

It has seemed best to characterize this note as Provisional, and thus to intimate that in place of it, at some future stage in the development of the work, may be substituted a more adequate introduction.

In conclusion, the Compiler and Editor asks the privilege of stating that for a long time he has had an untrammelled hand in dealing with the masses of material from which these pages have been wrought. He, therefore, is alone responsible for errors herein.

THOMAS JOHNSTON HOMER.

 Component parts; Die Kunst für Alle [1885]; Dekorative Kunst [1897].
 Each of these parts retains its specific identity, and its individual Jahrgang numbering. A series of numbered Bände appears to have been begun in 1899; and to relate to the two parts regarded as alternates of the combination. (E.g., Bd. 41 is a certain Jahrg. of one part, and Bd. 42 is a certain Jahrg. of the other part.) In addition, a fourth serial-number represents a third Jahrgang numbering, that of the combination, and therefore also begun in 1899.

Prefatory Note

(To Part V)

The attention of Subscribers is called to the fact that this record contains, to a limited extent, certain serial publications in non-local libraries; and a few serials (mainly departmental publications of States) founded since 1918. The non-local libraries most commonly referred to are the Library of Congress, the New York Public Library, and the John Crerar Library. The generous and steady co-operation of these three great institutions, which have freely sent to the Compiler, in the aggregate, many thousands of cards, over a period of many years, is gratefully appreciated.

As supplementary to the acknowledgments made herein, and in the Explanatory Note at the beginning of this compilation, the Compiler and Editor wishes to record here the frequent and valued assistance which he, in the progress of this work, has derived from the very extensive and notable "Union List of Serials in Libraries of the United States and Canada," edited by Winifred Gregory.

Libraries Represented

Arranged in the Order of their Abbreviations

(Revised List, 1932)

To libraries, whose collections, however valuable in themselves, have been herein included only to a slight extent (such inclusion having been made, ordinarily, in order to record comparatively scarce publications) the Compiler desires to make especial acknowledgments. Local libraries whose collections are thus drawn upon are marked with a *. Non-local libraries whose collections are drawn upon are specifically named as the occasion may arise.

The Spring and the Fall Conferences now amount to more than 160 specifically enumerated series of Annual Conferences. In the majority of cases, these parallel series of Conferences are held somewhere in the United States, each series in its appropriate locality; but the localities of a considerable number of the series are in foreign lands, and the Conferences in all annually include "all the continents of the earth."

The first Conference (Philadelphia) was in 1773; but no series became Annual until a later date. [1796?]

The volumes of "Minutes", here recorded, cover a vast field, and are presumably summaries of the many conferences reported. For much fuller accounts of many (if not all) of the Conferences the inquirer is referred to the official reports of the individual conferences, published from year to year separately. A few instances of such publications here follow.

Prefatory Note

(To Part VI)

The expansion of this record (to which attention was called in the Note to Part V) to contain a small number of publications not within the limits of the title of the compilation, has been continued in Part VI.

As supplementary to the acknowledgments made in the Explanatory Note at the beginning of the work, and in the Prefatory Note to Part V, the Compiler and Editor wishes to record here his grateful thanks to the F. W. Faxon Company for the helpful and interesting Bulletin of Bibliography sent to him continuously for many years; to Professor William N. Seaver of the Co-operating Committee, Librarian of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for valued assistance and good offices; and to Mr. Ingersoll Bowditch, Treasurer of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and hence Custodian of the subscriptions forming the publication fund of the Guide to Serial Publications, for many hours of administrative labors cheerfully given to this enterprise, and for his unflagging stimulus and encouragement.

In 1904 Sanitarian [1873] was merged in Popular Science Monthly.
In 1907 Amateur Work [1901] was consolidated with Electrician and Mechanic [1890 (Bubier's Popular Electrician)].
In Jan. 1914 Electrician and Mechanic and Modern Electrics [1908], were united as Modern Electrics and Mechanics, which, in July, 1914, absorbed Popular Electricity and the World's Advance [1908]. The joint publication assumed in rapid succession the following titles: Popular Electricity and Modern Mechanics; Modern Mechanics (and Popular Electricity); World's Advance . . . . In Oct. 1915 World's Advance was merged with Popular Science Monthly.
In 1915 or 1916 the character of the Popular Science Monthly changed; it became distinctly more popular, if not less scientific; but a new periodical Scientific Monthly [1915+] was established, which is believed not merely to have carried forward, but to have advanced the standard and the policies of the Popular Science Monthly of the period from 1900 to 1915.

In Memoriam
THOMAS JOHNSTON HOMER

Prefatory Note

(To Part VII)

Thomas Johnston Homer passed away in 1937 just after he had started work on this final part. The editor has attempted to complete the information on his outline cards, to add where necessary entries required by references in Parts I-VI and also to add some few selected entries not suggested by Mr. Homer, without regard to whether "founded prior to 1918", the limiting factor in the earlier parts. As authorities, Gregory's Union List of Serials and information received in replies to questionnaires sent to the libraries represented in this Guide to Serial Publications were used. Because of limited space, entries for State and city publications, yearbooks, student publications, and newspapers have not been included except as required by references found in Parts I-VI. University publications have been represented only by major series or entries required by references. U.S. government documents have been omitted in toto. It has also been deemed best to eliminate references from place names.

Main entries are of two types: a) Those under society and b) Those under title of periodical or serial. Entries for the former include the following information: name of society, date of founding of society, where known, plus name of society at date of founding, title of periodical or serial, its beginning date with title at time of starting, place published, frequency of appearance, and symbol of library or libraries having holdings. Entries under title include name of periodical or serial, date of its beginning plus title at that time, date when periodical or serial ceased publication, name of sponsoring organization, place of publication, frequency, and the symbol of library or libraries having holdings. In the matter of holdings no attempt has been made to retain the superior figures used by Mr. Homer with the symbols in the earlier parts to indicate completeness of the file. Symbols listed include only those libraries which have substantial holdings of the particular periodical or serial, or if only one library has holdings, that library is listed even though holdings are few. Descriptive notes with each entry give information as to variant names of the organization and of the title, mergers and successions. In some cases it has been necessary because of references in Parts I-VI to include entries for which there are no longer any local holdings or for which no information has been obtainable. Explanation as to why such items were included is noted in each case by a statement beginning "Referred to from . . ."

Grateful acknowledgment is made to my former colleagues of the Library staff at Massachusetts Institute of Technology for their professional assistance — especially, Miss Hildegard Ziegler, Head of the Catalog Department, Mrs. Margaret de Le Vin, Senior Assistant in the same department, and Miss Mirian Smith, former Head of the Reference Department. To Mr. William Seaver, former Librarian of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Chairman of the Cooperating Committee for the Guide to Serial Publications, I wish to express my appreciation for the opportunity to complete a work in which I became interested when typing the material for Part VI and the beginning of Part VII for Mr. Homer, and to Miss Laura Scamman, former Library Secretary, I owe thanks for her moral support and encouragement. Acknowledgment is also made to those librarians who so faithfully answered the questionnaires sent to them.

Because of lack of funds for research it was impossible to check completely present holdings of the represented libraries. Therefore for the most part only those entries suggested by Mr. Homer have been included and holdings supplied according to the Union List, which does not cover all the local libraries in this list. Where symbols for these local libraries were suggested by Mr. Homer on his cards the symbols were kept though not checked. Moreover, since periodicals are not static and many changes have occurred since the publication of Parts I-VI, up-to-dateness has been only partially obtained. The time devoted by the editor to this work was for the most part outside of working hours and during vacations over a period of five years for the compilation, and intermittently thereafter, eight years for the proofreading (with Mr. Seaver sharing one-half the burden), and therefore the result is not wholly satisfactory. This completing part is thus presented in fulfillment of an obligation to subscribers — with apologies.

An Added Word

The long delay in bringing this final part of the Guide to press has been as distressing to Mrs. Shufelt and me as it has no doubt been exasperating to many subscribers. Mrs. Shufelt has shown above how she had to carry the editorial work single-handed, principally on her own spare time, over a period of many years. When her work was completed and several printing firms were approached for bids, it was found that printing costs had more than doubled since Part VI appeared, so that the balance of the original fund would not cover the cost. Several libraries associated with the project during its early years were then given an opportunity to help out but declined. With the entire Part ready in manuscript the project lingered along until the Boston Public Library offered to let the Library's Printing Department handle the printing in its slack periods, upon a financial arrangement satisfactory on both sides. This agreement was most welcome because that library had previously printed Parts I-V of the Guide. Unfortunately the large proportion of foreign language entries appearing in this Part VII required an unusual number of successive proofs, the reading of which had to compete with the home duties and problems of two families and often had to be laid aside for weeks at a time.

However, the end of the journey has been reached, with great credit due Mrs. Shufelt for her long, conscientious persistence in a labor of love, and to the Boston Public Library for coming generously to the rescue of a bibliographic project in straits.

To those who have urged that the coming of the Union List of Serials rendered the Guide superfluous, it may be pointed out that the Guide covers various libraries in the Greater Boston area not represented in the Union List and that its low price has made it available to many libraries which could not afford the larger list. Moreover, the meticulous care which Mrs. Shufelt has devoted to the work of annotation makes it most valuable for the tracing of changes in the names, dates and numbering of hundreds of serials and institutions in many lands.

Libraries Represented

Arranged in the Order of their Abbreviations

(Revised List, May 1955)

To libraries whose collections, however valuable in themselves, have been herein included only to a slight extent (such inclusion having been made ordinarily, in order to record comparatively scarce publications) the Editor desires to make especial acknowledgment. Local libraries whose collections are thus drawn upon are marked with an asterisk (*). Non-local libraries whose collections are drawn upon are specifically named in the text as the occasion may arise.

During the preparation of this part the following libraries were broken up:

- A. American Academy of Arts and Sciences
- FM. American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions
- NH. Boston Society of Natural History

Some sets from A were given to Harvard, Boston Public Library, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but the majority were purchased by the Linda Hall Library of Kansas City, Missouri.

Some material from FM was placed in the custody of Harvard Divinity School Library and the Houghton Library at Harvard, and some given to Andover-Newton Theological Library, but an FM Library is still maintained.

The NH collection was stored pending the erection of a new building, and some of it was still stored as late as 1954; but many of the serial sets went to the Allan Hancock Foundation in Los Angeles, which is affiliated with the University of Southern California. About 800 titles were transferred to the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard (Z) and about 19,000 volumes were retained at the new Museum of Science, Science Park, Boston, successor to the Boston Society of Natural History.

In view of the above changes, it was obviously impracticable to change the many location symbols already in type, consequently indulgence is asked of users who find themselves obliged to refer from the symbols to this explanatory statement. And if the desired volumes are not shown to be obtainable from other libraries in the Boston area, inquiry should be made of the libraries named above as present custodians.

Sanitary and Heating Age. New York, m.

In September, 1920, Metal Worker, Plumber and Steam Fitter . . . and Sheet Metal were consolidated under one management, but were continued as separate papers. Beginning October 1, 1920, they were published in alternate weeks, under the titles, Plumber and Steam Fitter (which continued the volume numbering of Metal Worker, Plumber and Steam Fitter) and Sheet Metal Worker . . . (which continued the volume numbering of Sheet Metal). With the issue of July 15, 1921, the title, Plumber and Steam Fitter was changed to Sanitary and Heating Engineering, and with the issue of June 15, 1929, to Sanitary and Heating Age . . . . Consolidated with Plumbing and Heating Contractors' Trade Journal as 1968, which became, 1938, Plumbing and Heating Journal Cf. 1-611.
